GCWCC campaign swings into action

By Ross Lees

They're swinging for the greens in 8 Wing's Government of Canada Workplace Charity Campaign (GCWCC) this year.

Kicking off the campaign Thursday morning, 8 Wing Commander Colonel (Col.) Colin Keiver launched the ball off the tee to begin the tournament used by co-campaign chairs Major (Maj.) Christopher Hepburn and Master Warrant Officer (MWO) Scott Creamer to support the United Way of Quinte campaign along with Executive Director Judi Gilbert.

It was one of those good news, bad news days for the GCWCC team at 8 Wing, as Ms. Gilbert recently announced this would be her final campaign as Executive Director of the United Way of Quinte.

That was the bad news.

The good news was that 8 Wing's co-chairs have developed a new strategy this year to try and boost the fundraising goal and the fun during the campaign.

A Community Fair will combine such leading fundraisers as the Hercules Pull, the Rappel Tower, Ride

If swinging for the greens was the aim, 8 Wing Commander Col. Colin Keiver demonstrated that well in his tee-off shot by putting his ball within five feet of the pin.

8 Wing Heritage Park supplies enduring historical perspective

By Ross Lees

The enduring legacy of 8 Wing/Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton is now well documented in the 8 Wing Heritage Park, officially opened Wednesday morning by 8 Wing Commander Colonel (Col.) Colin Keiver.

This spectacular new park in front of the Officers' Mess replaces an eyesore Col. Keiver referred to in his opening remarks as "a pit of despair," a former sunken garden ravaged by time and neglect.

By establishing this face-lifted park, he said it was an opportunity for 8 Wing to create its narrative, record its history and allow people to connect with that heritage.

"This is an opportunity to commemorate all of that right here in one little place for those to use – or not – as you see fit. It gives me a great deal of honour to officially open this Heritage Park," he said.

8 Wing Base Engineering Officer Steve Chinnatamby said they had been working on the project for about 18 months, drafting concepts and implementing changes to finally arrive at the finished product, which was designed by Marina

NAFMCF gala will be 'Out of This World'

Renowned Canadian artist will present portrait of eminent Canadian astronaut Chris Hadfield to the museum with Chris Hadfield

By Ross Lees

When the National Air Force Museum of Canada Foundation (NAFMCF) named their semi-formal annual gala "Out of this World, Astronaut Portrait Gala," they weren't just launching baking soda rockets.

Their gala event on Oct. 21 will feature two very well-known Canadian personalities – renowned Canadian artist Cyril Leeper and Colonel (Col.) Chris Hadfield, a former Canadian astronaut and the first Canadian Commander of the International Space Station.

So when the NAFMCF says it is "out of this world stuff," they kid you not.

Cyril Leeper is well known for painting portraits of members of the Royal Family, senior military officers, government officials and business leaders. More recently, Mr. Leeper created a portrait of Col. Hadfield, which will be unveiled and presented to the museum by Mr. Leeper and Col. Hadfield at the gala.

"We are very excited about this year's gala," said development coordinator Brigitte Frances. "It's going to be a special evening where those in attendance will have the good fortune to hear from an artist whose talents are known across the country. Everyone will also be able to meet and listen to Col. Hadfield."

Tickets for this event are being sold for $150, and can be purchased at the NAFMC, the Chamber of Commerce in Belleville and Trenton as well as Smylies Your Independent Grocer.

Doors will open at 6 p.m. for cocktails, followed by dinner, portrait unveiling, live auction and a dance. Money raised from the event will go towards supporting the NAFMCF and the Theatre

Col. Chris Hadfield, a former Canadian astronaut and the first Canadian Commander of the International Space Station shown here in an appearance in Belleville in 2014, will be on hand at the NAFMCF gala on Oct. 21 to unveil and present his portrait painted by renowned Canadian artist Cyril Leeper. campaign, an effort by the NAFMCF to build an educational theater within their space that will benefit Quinte West and the surrounding communities.

"8 Wing remains committed to the National Air Force Museum of Canada Foundation and its efforts to support the museum," explained 8 Wing Commander, Col. Colin Keiver. "The yearly gala is one of the great ways our Foundation is able to present something special to the community, while at the same time raising money needed to help further the important stories of the amazing men and women in the RCAF in new and exciting ways." Canadian Forces Station (CFS) Alert personnel held a Polar Bear Dip at the Lincoln Sea on Aug. 27. Planning for the event began weeks in advance with organizers ensuring the participants would have an enjoyable and safe day.

Warrant Officer Denise Snow was the organizer for the Hawaiian themed event. Station medical staff ensured all participants were physically healthy and able to endure the sub-zero water temperatures. Supply personnel ensured all equipment needed was available and readily transported to the event.

Assisting with the setup was the Nasittuq Kitchen staff who prepared a delicious Hawaiian stew and provided coffee and hot chocolate for the participants. Station volunteers provided a heated tent for participants to change clothes and the Alert Fire Department assisted with lighting the bonfire.

Participants entered the water in waves and were then greeted by the warmth of a bonfire and some delicious stew.

The event was a refreshing opportunity for Station personnel to get outdoors and enjoy the Arctic Ocean and was enjoyed by both spectators and participants alike.

Judi Gilbert leaving United Way Quinte after coming campaign

Ms. Gilbert is looking forward to resurrecting and growing her consulting business

By Ross Lees

The face of United Way Quinte (UWQ) will be changing in March, 2017 – after the present campaign concludes.

Judi Gilbert, Executive Director of UWQ since May 2011, has announced she will start her own business after she is replaced at the helm at the end of March. She gave her present employers six month's notice so they would have plenty of time to replace her and she would still lead them through this campaign.

"The board of directors accepted Judi's six month notice with mixed emotions – sadness at losing such an outstanding leader and delight for Judi as she embarks on the next phase of her career. Ms. Gilbert advised the Board that she plans to start her own business," said Brenda Pergantes, Chair of the Board of Directors.

The board praised the passion, dedication to her staff and entrepreneurial spirit Ms. Gilbert had invested in past campaigns and the organization itself.

"We know that she will lead this year's campaign with the same professionalism and dedication," added Ms. Pergantes.

Under her leadership, Ms. Gilbert and her team of dedicated professionals not only reached a fundraising milestone of over $2 million in the 2013 campaign, but also achieved a 25 per cent growth in the organization's annual campaigns over a five year period. As well, she oversaw the successful implementation of its community impact strategy aimed at continuing to bring about measureable and permanent change for people throughout Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

It was a difficult decision to make, Ms. Gilbert stated.

"I feel blessed and proud to have held this position and continue to know how fortunate I am to work with a staff team that is so professional and passionate about the UWQ," she said.

"The decision making process was lengthy but in the end I felt very strongly that this was the right decision at the right time for me personally. I certainly took into consideration that we are coming into campaign and that it would be unfair to leave prior to the end of campaign. I also felt strongly that six month's notice would allow our Board of Directors to find my replacement and allow for a seamless transition."

She also pointed out that the success of the campaigns could not have been achieved without the incredible support and generosity of the United Way of Quinte's donors, community partners and volunteers.

Ms. Gilbert added that she has enjoyed working with so many people in the community and the relationships that "we have forged have been an incredible part of my journey with UWQ."

Picking a highlight of her tenure was tough for this incredibly positive person.

"I think one of the obvious highlights was 2013 when we broke the $2 million mark," she recalls proudly. "That was significant for the organization and for the community.

"During my tenure and even before that, United Way of Quinte has always been fortunate to have the support of so many individuals, volunteers and organizations and definitely another highlight for me is the friendships and wonderful working relationships that I was fortunate enough to be a part of with so many people - that is what I will miss the most.

"Another significant highlight was the adoption of the Community Impact agenda and the development of our organization's key priorities. I also think the reintroduction of our Casino night as well as our newest event - Food Trucks United - are great events that allow so many community members and families to participate in.

Working with her staff team was also a significant highlight for Ms. Gilbert.

"They are an incredible group of individuals with exceptional expertise and I will definitely miss my daily interaction with them."

Ms. Gilbert noted that campaigns are hectic and high pressure and, while she anticipates a more even keel within her own business, the team at United Way Quinte was always busy.

"I think that our business has evolved and although things aren't as hectic as during campaign season there are many other priorities that keep me and my team busy year round. Campaign planning begins in January and even prior to that we are very busy with funding applications, allocations, event planning etc. That being said I am sure I will welcome more of an even keel schedule, but only time will tell," she acknowledged.

While Ms. Gilbert is looking forward to resurrecting and growing her consulting business, her first priority at this point is the United Way of Quinte campaign.

"I think my entrepreneurial spirit has been calling me back for a while but it is all about timing and readiness. I am working to fine-tune my focus areas, but I think it is safe to say it will include many skills that I have acquired over the past 30 years of working in the public and private sector," she said.

A search will be conducted by the Board of Directors for her replacement in the coming weeks and months, she said.

Career Day in Centre Hastings attracts a military influence

By Second Lieutenant Ken Jacobson,
8 Wing Public Affairs

Professionals from the local Wing/Canadian Forces Base community were invited to attend the Centre Hastings Sports Camp Career Day, held at Whytock Municipal Park, in Madoc recently.

Centre Hastings Sport Camp Career Day featured a variety of occupations the children attending camp had voiced an interest in.

"The children told us basically what they want to be when they grow up, so we based (career day) around what they want to be," said camp co-ordinator and Madoc native, Amber Livingstone. "We heard a lot of 'we want to be in the military', we had a lot of people say, 'we want to be a firefighter, a police officer' so we tried to base which local professionals were invited on what the kids want to be."

The Canadian Armed Forces (CAF) were represented by 8

Wing/Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton Community Outreach and Heritage Officer Captain (Capt.) Sandor Gyuk. Meanwhile career day also featured Stirling Veterinarian Services, Hasting-Quinte Paramedic Services, Steve O'Brien from the Steve O'Brien Foundation, and firefighters from the Madoc Fire Department. The Lions Club were on hand to provide a barbecue.

With the various professions set up at different stations around the park, the children, who were split into groups of three or four, rotated from station to station with the opportunity to talk with each professional, who explained what it was like to do their respective jobs. At the CAF station, Capt. Gyuk engaged each group, talking about what a career in any of the three elements of the

After a quick question and answer period, everyone in each group received either a model airplane or a flying disc, which they launched to see who could get theirs to fly the farthest and inspiring interest in Canada's military for a new generation.

Defence Procurement Secretariat visits Trenton

By Second Lieutenant Ken Jacobson,
8 Wing Public Affairs

Eight members from the Defence Procurement Secretariat (DPSec), a Public Works organization that enables the acquisition of capital expenditures for the Department of National Defence, spent two days at Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton as part of a familiarization tour, Aug. 29 and 30. Conducted regularly, DPsSec visits different locations within the Canadian Armed Forces (CAF) with the goal of attaining exposure to the equipment, and procedures used within the CAF.

The visit to CFB Trenton focused on providing the group exposure to sustained air operations, training, and simulations in addition to providing insight into some of the major requirements necessary to support the ongoing business of the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF).

Greeted at 2 Air Mov. Sqn. by Deputy Commanding Officer (DCO), Major (Maj.) Annie Malouin, members of DPsSec toured the cargo handling and preparation facilities, where some of the specialized equipment used by the squadron was highlighted. When asked about the squadron's role in deployed operations, Maj. Malouin explained that 2 Air Mov. Sqn. is the central cargo hub for the CAF, and is responsible for preparation of shipping documents, load build-up as well as loading and unloading all 8 Wing transport aircraft, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Next the tour stopped at 436 Transport (T) Squadron. Welcomed by Maj. Sylvain Gazielle, Squadron Aircraft Maintenance Engineering Officer (SAMEO), the delegation received a brief introduction to the squadron, and was invited to board one of the new C-130J Hercules aircraft. While on board, some of the group took the opportunity to experience the view from the cockpit, while in the cargo hold, Master Corporal (MCpl.) Benoit St-Germain explained the different possible cargo configurations, demonstrating the aircraft's versatility by showing how quickly its configurable floor can be changed to accommodate different load types.

Leaving 436 (T) Squadron, and the CC-130J, the delegation was met on the ramp by 424 (Transport and Rescue) (T&R) Squadron Commanding Officer, Lieutenant Colonel (Lt.-Col.) Leighton James, who welcomed the group, and provided a brief overview of the squadron's roles and responsibilities.

Talking to the group about search and rescue (SAR) operations, Lt.-Col. James explained that, with aid from 435 (T&R) Squadron in Winnipeg, 424 (T&R) Squadron is responsible for providing emergency search and rescue (SAR) services to more than 10 million square kilometers of Canadian land; a geographic area stretching, east to west, from Québec City to the Alberta—British Columbia border, and north to south from the North Pole to the Canada—United States border.

While at 424 (T&R) Squadron, DPsSec members were able to get an up-close look at a SAR configured, CH-146 Griffon helicopter as well as a CC-130H legacy Hercules aircraft. Pilots Capt. Dustin West and Capt. Jeff McIssac, and SAR Tech Sergeant (Sgt.) Jody Hynes answered group questions about the specialized SAR equipment used onboard the aircraft, as well as how the two aircrafts can be used independently or in unison while conducting SAR operations.

Before leaving the flight-line for the Air Mobility Training Centre (AMTC), Wing Operations Officer, Lt.-Col. Steve Camps, and SAR Tech, Warrant Officer Marc Charron, took the group for a tour of the Major Air Disaster (MAJAD) Facility. Lt.-Col. Camps explained that in the event of a major air disaster, CFB Trenton is capable of quickly delivering pre-packaged, life-saving equipment to the disaster site, intended to help the survivors cope until rescue services arrive. "It's not to make them comfortable, it's to make them survive," he added.

Receiving the group at the Air Mobility Training Center, was 426 (Transport) Training Squadron Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. Brent Hoddinott, who invited members of DPsSec to tour the squadron's one-of-a-kind state-of-the-art facilities used to type-train pilots and maintainers on the new CC-130J Hercules aircraft.

Lt.-Col. Hoddinott emphasized that by using the highly sophisticated training facilities available at the AMTC, 426 (T) Training Squadron is capable of cutting training time in half; rare scenarios that would delay qualification can now be replicated at will with uncanny realism.

The group received first-hand demonstrations of the Integrated Cockpit Systems Trainer (ICST), Special Parts Task

Union barbecue honours early struggles

Barbecuers Dave Charron, Dennis Miluck, Ryan Rivers and Preben Hansen work over the barbecues and serving members of 8 Wing, both civilian and military, at the Union of National Defence Employees Local 637 annual barbecue on Sept. 1. Photos by Ross Lees

The annual Union of National Defence Employees Local 637 barbecue held just prior to the Labour Day weekend, recalled some of the early struggles of union members in their efforts to get an eight-hour work day established. During that early struggle, some union members even went to jail, a union spokesperson noted.

8 Wing Commander Colonel (Col.) Colin Keiver told the people attending the barbecue that it was a great opportunity to recognize the partnership and teamwork necessary to have a base the size of Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton function efficiently.

He advised those in attendance to relax and enjoy the Labour Day weekend and come back ready to work because the tempo was going to get busier rather than less so, according to what the Minister of National Defence Harjit Sajjan said in his recent visit.

With 600 troops scheduled to begin a peacekeeping mission in Africa on top the missions and deployments already under way, life at Canada's largest air force base was bound to get busier, Col. Keiver noted.

"It is this teamwork that allows that to happen," he said. "Every single one of you are leaders and I expect you to talk to each other and work together to help make this happen. Come back rested because we are only getting busier."

8 Wing Fleet Lifecycle Management

As part of the 8 Wing/CFB Trenton vehicle life cycle management and replacement, all vehicles being replaced by new ones are normally sent for remarketing at Government of Canada Surplus in Toronto. Once the vehicles are replaced, they receive a remarket inspection and are then sent off to auction. Proceeds received from re-sale are then used for future procurement of new vehicles.

In this case the vehicle is being shipped to the Logistics Museum in Montreal where it will be used as a display. There will also be one placed at the National Air Force Museum of Canada here in Trenton.

GCWCC campaign swings into action

for Help and the Car and Bike show into one massive day of fun and fundraising on Oct 1. The event will also feature a Kid Zone, barbeque and beverages for a totally exciting family package.

But this year's GCWCC campaign got off to stellar start with a sweet swing by Col. Keiver with a Tiger ball delivered by 424 Squadron search and rescue technicians (SAR techs) Warrant Officer (WO) Aaron Bygrove and Master Corporal (MCpl.) Daryl Jambrich. If the greens were the target, Col. Keiver showed them how to do it in spades.

Col. Keiver noted the tournament was bigger and better than last year, just what he had ordered for the official kickoff of 8 Wing's GCWCC.

"It's our opportunity on the Wing to give back to a community that has given so much to us. It means the world to see you (the representatives of municipal government) here because this is truly a team sport in every single sense of the word. Thank you for getting involved. It is a great cause!" he said in his opening remarks.

Judi Gilbert, the executive director of the United Way of Quinte, noted how important events like the Wing Commander's Golf Tournament are to the local campaign.

"This is the unofficial kickoff of our United Way of Quinte campaign and we are always grateful for the support we receive from 8 Wing and the community of Quinte West and surrounding areas," she stated.

She felt the campaign appealed to a lot of donors because the money goes to funded agencies and programs throughout Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

"The dollars raised in our communities stay in our communities," she said, adding the campaign raised over $2.1 million last year and just over $90,000 of that came from the 8 Wing GCWCC.

"We cannot raise those kinds of dollars without the support of workplaces like the GCWCC campaign and 8 Wing," she stated.

Ms. Gilbert also underlined the value of volunteers to the campaign and thanked them for their efforts.

"We couldn't be as successful without volunteers in the community," she said. "With over 200 workplace campaigns and me only having a staff of six, it is significant to have so many volunteers."

Trainer (SPTT), and Fuselage Aircraft Systems Trainer (FAST) which are used to train maintainers on the parts and systems of the CC-130J Hercules aircraft. In addition, DPsec members were invited to experience the night-vision Hercules Observer Trainer (HOT), as well as a simulated flight in one of the two CC-130J full-mission simulators which have been certified by Transport Canada. Lt.

MCpl. St-Germain demonstrates how the floor of the CC-130J can be quickly changed to accommodate different mission demands, August 29. Photo by 2Lt Ken Jacobson

Col. Hoddinott explained that by having the full-mission simulators certified by Transport Canada, new pilots to the CC-130J can receive their type qualification without ever flying an actual aircraft, reducing wear and maintenance costs of the RCAF's already highly tasked fleet of CC-130J Hercules aircraft.

Day two began with breakfast at the Yukon Galley, followed by a tour of the 8 Wing Air Traffic Control tower. Greeted at the control tower by acting Wing Air Traffic Control Officer, Captain (Capt.) Adin Switzer; the group found their way up to the control cab on the seventh floor. Once assembled in the tower cab, Capt. Switzer explained the roles and responsibilities of each control position within the tower, and the types of air traffic control services provided in Trenton, after which visual flight rules controller Capt. John Healey, and ground controller Sgt. Marie Potvin provided answers to any specific questions the group had.

Leaving the tower, the group was met by "Birdman" Jason Botting, from Falcon Environmental Services, a civilian company contracted to manage wildlife on the airfield. Botting explained the numerous challenges that wildlife creates on an airport, and how with the use of highly trained falcons, hawks, dogs, pyrotechnics, and other commonly used industry techniques are able to effectively manage wildlife here in Trenton. Providing a spare leather falconry glove, to protect their hands from the bird's sharp talons, Botting offered those interested the opportunity to hold one of their trained hawks.

As the group continued their tour, they were greeted by 429 (T) Squadron Commanding Officer, Lt.-Col. William Church, at the newly constructed 1 Hangar on the north side of the airfield. With one of the squadron's five CC-177 Globemaster III aircraft in the hangar for maintenance, Lt.-Col. Church took a few minutes to explain some of the unique operational characteristics that make the CC-177 a critical part of both the strategic, and tactical airlift toolboxes; large cargo capacity, short field take-off and landing capability, rapid cargo off-loading capabilities, and thrust reversers allowing the aircraft to move backwards while taxiing.

The last stop on their two-day tour of CFB Trenton was the National Air Force Museum of Canada. Tour guide Andre Lussier greeted the group, and provided a brief history of the Museum's most predominant artifact, a Second World War Handley Page Halifax bomber recovered from the bottom of Lake Mjøsa, Norway, in 2008, before encouraging the group to explore the museum and its many exhibits which showcase the rich heritage and history of the RCAF.

With their whirlwind tour behind them, members of DPsec headed back to Ottawa, with a lasting impression of what the dedicated hard working men, and women, of CFB Trenton have done, and continue to do day-in and day-out.

8 Wing Chief Warrant Officer Darcy Elder said while the land was located in front of the Officers' Mess, the park is meant to be used by all base personnel. While there are a number of ele-mony that ties in with all the oak trees which were given to us by the United Kingdom when seedlings came over on the Queen Mary. They've grown very strong over the years with deep roots, and the symbolism of that tree is the roots that 8Wing/CFB Trenton has within the Quinte region, which are very deep and strong," ments used to make up the park, CWO Elder noted one of the significant elements was an English oak tree in the background.

"That tree was very significantly planted at an earlier cerehe said.

Col. Keiver added to that, noting that all elements of the park meant something.

"These things should remind every single one of us what we do and what we are a part of is much bigger than any one of us as individuals. It is something much, much bigger that serves Canada and Canadians at home and abroad. Without that community support in the background, we couldn't do any of it," he stated.

"It's just an opportunity for people to come out here and, hopefully by reading the plaques, they'll get a general understanding of 8 Wing, what it does, what it has done, what it will continue to do."

A flag pole currently flies the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF) ensign, but will eventually fly the 8 Wing flag, now being designed.

The elements of the park

The Roundel located at the start of the walkway signifies the long-standing identity of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The walkway is meant to represent a landing strip, highlighting the fact that 8 Wing has a long and solid history.

The end of the path opens up and becomes wide, symbolizing that our reach is broad; this is coupled with the historical markers inscribed with the significant events of our history. Over the years to come, further significant events will be added so those in the future can look to the past in order to grow within the institution.

Giving the Gift of Life

By Second Lieutenant Ken Jacobson,
8 Wing Public Affairs

With a constant demand for blood, Canadian Blood Services (CBS) set up a temporary blood donor clinic at the Yukon Galley, Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton, Friday, Sept. 2, in order to help meet the forecast need for 32,000 units of blood over the Labour Day long weekend.

The blood collected by CBS, a not-for-profit, charitable organization responsible for managing Canada's blood supply, is regularly used to treat a number of injuries and illnesses including blood disorders, various types of cancers, organ transplants, transfusions, as well as car accidents and other traumatic injuries.

With precariously low inventories of blood-types A Negative, and "universal" O Negative, CBS depends entirely upon voluntary donors at any of their 36 permanent sites and approximately 14,000 temporary donor clinics that are set up annually.

"My mother and grandmother both had blood transfusions and I'm a frequent donor. I donate as often as possible," said Corporal (Cpl.) Tyler Bonnett, from 81st Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force (CEF).

With half of all Canadians either requiring blood services themselves or knowing someone that will require blood services within their lives, only four per cent of Canadians donate. CBS aims to change that.

With recent changes made to donor eligibility, which removed the upper age limits, donors can now donate blood every 56 days, starting any time after their 17th birthday.

Canadian Blood Services is scheduled to have donor clinics in the Quinte West region on the following dates;

Saturday, September 24, at the Calvary Community Church, 679 Dundas Street West in Belleville;

Monday, October 3, at the Belleville Fish and Game Club, 170 Elmwood Drive in Belleville; and Friday, October 7, at the Fellowship Christian Reformed Church, 204 Main Street in Brighton.

For more information, or to schedule your donation, visit www.blood.ca or call 1-888-2 DONATE (1-888-236-6283)
