Media get a sneak peek at QIAS 2016

By Ross Lees

The newest version of the Quinte International Air Show (QIAS) 2016 is going to be a war birds aficionado's dream come true.

Visitors to the air show this weekend will see the war birds of World War II as well as the most modern and up-to-date war planes like the F-22 Raptor and everything in between.

Lieutenant-Colonel Cathy Blue, a co-chair of QIAS 2016, even indicated at the media day held June 16 that Kent Pietsch would land his airplane on top of a trailer.

Also very much on display that weekend will be the aircraft of the Canadian Armed Forces and the Royal Canadian Air Force RCAF, she noted, including those flying at 8 Wing/Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton.

"We have a great weekend planned on June 25 and 26," she said. "We

BOXTOP 22 crash site commemorated

By 2Lt. Jennifer Howell, 8 Wing Public Affairs

Under the hands of 8 Wing Commander Colonel (Col.) Colin Keiver, a CC-130J Hercules aircraft circles an area 16 kilometres south of Canadian Forces Station (CFS) Alert on June 14. Even on this beautiful sunny day, it is apparent this is no land to be messed with. Barren, snow-covered, and windswept – this is Canada’s most northern reaches. Add in darkness, blizzard conditions, and -30°C temperatures, and the feat of human survival becomes all that much more incredible.

“I can’t believe I spent more than 30 hours out here,” said Master Warrant Officer (MWO) Tony Cobden as he looks out the small round window of the Hercules at the remnants of the CC-130 on the ground.

It was 25 years earlier when MWO Cobden, a communications researcher, along with 17 others, were on board BOXTOP flight 22 when it crashed on final approach to CFS Alert during Operation BOXTOP, the bi-annual resupply of the station. Logistics officer Captain (Capt.) Judy Trépanier, CANEX regional services manager MWO Tom Jardine, supply technician Warrant Officer (WO) Robert Grimsley and traffic technician Master Corporal (MCpl.) Roland Pitre, all died in the crash, while aircraft commander Captain John Couch, succumbed to hypothermia after leading the effort to survive in place and giving up his coat to the other survivors.

MWO Cobden, the one survivor serving in the Canadian Armed Forces (CAF) today, fittingly represents all those on Boxtop Flight 22 during what is preparatory work ahead of the 25th anniversary commemoration to be held more accessibly in Trenton later this year. MWO Cobden is joined on this trip by fellow survivor Master Seaman (MS) (Ret’d) D.N. “Monty” Montgomery, search and rescue technician Sergeant (Sgt.) Ben House, a member of the rescue team that parachuted into the crash site, and Lieutenant-Colonel (Lt.-Col.) (Ret’d) Scott McLean, the commanding officer of CFS Alert in 1991 who led the Station’s response to the crash, dispatching overland

Quinte West Relay for Life raises over $64,000

By Erin Stewart

With over 300 participants and 31 teams walking at this year's Quinte West Relay for Life, donations rolled in and totalled $64,035 to support Canada's fight against cancer.

Participants walked in the sunny afternoon on Saturday, June 18 from noon until midnight during the 12-hour event at Trenton High School.

"We're so happy with how the event went and there was just so much excitement there and the energy was so positive," said Brad Warner, fund-raising co-ordinator for the Hastings Prince Edward and Brighton unit of the Canadian Cancer Society.

"Our goal was $60,000, so not only did we raise more than our goal, we really did have an awesome event and we had really great feedback from all of the participants," said Warner.

8 Wing/CFB Trenton Base Commander Colonel (Col.) Colin Keiver spoke to the participants during the opening ceremonies and said it's great to see so many people giving back to the community and supporting a great cause.

"It's awesome to give back to a community that gives so much to us. Eighty-five years ago the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF) decided to call this place home and home it is today because of this great community," he said.

On a personal note, Col. Keiver said it was very important for himself and his wife Jennifer to be at Relay for Life.

"Because it was almost four years ago today that we sat in a neurosurgeon's office in Kingston and were told that our 10-year-old son had a brain tumour," said Col. Keiver. "His operation was on the Nov. 12, 2012. We watched him play his first hockey game again on Feb. 12, 2013, which is amazing."

Col. Keiver said his son is doing exceptionally well and it's because of events like Relay for Life.

"These things are so important because without the funding in the background, that technology and that science and that medicine does not exist to make people like our son and your father and your brother and your mother, all of your family members, better and beat this thing called cancer," he said. "It affects everyone equally and it's a horrible, horrible disease that together we can beat if we keep trying."

Teresa Bell was the survivor speaker at this year's event. Bell was one of the two Canadians to recently receive the Canadian Cancer Society's National Medal of Courage.

Bell is still fighting cancer herself and spoke to the relay participants about her journey and how everyone has their own survivor story.

"I choose to step into this part of the path of my life, with my hands open to receive all that it has to give," she said. "I have the strength to do that, I have the strength to smile and look and see the gifts around me. I will continue to win because I do not let cancer take anything from me but a little bit of my body and, my body, it's a very small part of who I am."

"I'm a survivor because I have chosen to love my life," said Bell. "You all have different stories, all important and rich in their own way, many of you have moved on from your cancer diagnosis... you all have your own survivor story, what does survivor mean to you?"

Health Promotion Trenton is thrilled with the support, active participation, and enthusiasm of the 8 Wing Military Community in our 2016 Health and Wellness Challenge. We doubled our registration from 2015. Well done!

During the month of May we challenged you, the Military Community, to join us in making daily healthy choices and to track your progress. With an overwhelming registration of nearly 500 members, CFB Trenton held the highest number of participants across Canada. Record-breaking! We doubled our registration from 2015. Well done!

As the 2016 Challenge began, we were extremely pleased to have the Wing Commander and Wing Chief take leading roles in various base activities. Each Monday morning, our esteemed leaders joined many of you on the Parade Square, leading by example and spreading the message of health. Many thanks go out to Colonel Colin Keiver and Chief Darcy Elder for making healthy choices and for leading by example on a day-to-day basis. The Health and Wellness Challenge is always supported by various groups to ensure its success and as we really couldn't do it without them. We look forward to the future and to their continued participation. Our main sponsor - SISIP - was a constant presence in all Challenge events and donated many wonderful prizes for this year's qualifying members into the final draw. Our special Challenge T-shirts were sponsored by CANEX Trenton and were earned by registrants throughout the month. Fitness and Sports enthusiastically joined our Monday morning activities to set up, demonstrate exercises to the growing crowds and/or generate some participant excitement, which was much appreciated. And who can't forget the support of WTISS as we walked, ran or exercised to loud motivating music!

Now for the crowd pleaser, the winners of our 2016 Health and Wellness Challenge draw! We want to thank everyone that participated, registered, tracked and tried to make daily healthy choices. Recruiting aerospace controllers a challenge for CFASC

For Major (Maj.) Marty Zimmer, commanding officer Canadian Forces Aircrew Selection Centre, the most important task at hand is recruiting for one occupation: aerospace controller (AEC).

“[Our] long-term goal is to have what we call top pound selection. This is where we have a big enough pool of candidates that are successful,” said Maj. Zimmer. “Right now we’re having a little difficulty getting people to the recruiting centre so we have a very small pool right now.” Maj. Zimmer adds that pilot and air combat systems officer (ACSO) are the two most commonly sought after aircrew occupations because they are the most well-known. Many recruits coming in for testing are not aware that AEC is a career option in the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF). AEC officers have many unique challenges and opportunities, including the chance to specialize in either air traffic control or air weapons control.

deployment with the CF-188s or postings to the United States. “The opportunities to deploy are greater than any other trade. The opportunities for international postings are also greater than any other trade,” said Lieutenant (Lt.) (Navy) Steve Brown.

Lt. (Navy) Brown adds that many AECs find a sense of accomplishment when dealing with high-volume traffic and ensuring the airspace is controlled.

Although it is an Air Force trade, AEC officers can be deployed on a ship, aircraft or even in the field. AECs also work with the Canadian Army during combat training exercises, where they call in simulated airstrikes and provide air support to troops on the ground.

Before the training process begins, AECs must first complete an undergraduate degree from a recognized university and pass the same aircrew selection test as pilots and ACSOs. Upon selection for AEC, recruits complete training at the Canadian Forces School of Aerospace Control Operations in Cornwall, Ontario.

For more information on the AEC occupation and entry plans, visit www.forces.gc.ca.

424 (T&R) Squadron's Field Mess Dinner is a tremendous success

424 (T&R) Sqn Padre Capt. Flor smiles for the camera as part of the head table.

By Major Jean-Paul Landry, DCO 424 (T&R) Sqn

The normal traditions of a mess dinner were carried out in a relaxed setting where the tables were under canvas and Capt. Stephane Pouliot, the PMC, had to keep a close eye on her gavel. Members of the unit were encouraged to bring their own tents in order to camp on-site after the dinner was over and enjoy some time together around the bonfire.

The theme for the mess dinner this year was Boxtop 22. Lieutenant-Colonel (Lt.-Col.) Dany Poitras, Commanding Officer (CO) 424 (T&R) Sqn introduced the guest of honour, CWO (ret'd) Eric Larouche, a Search and Rescue Technician (SAR Tech) who was part of the first group of SAR Techs to reach the Box-top 22 crash site on Oct. 31, 1991. As part of the introduction, Lt.-Col. Poitras highlighted the level of effort from units across the Air Force in support of the rescue effort and emphasized the "one team, one mission" concept of SAR operations.

In his speech, CWO (ret'd) Larouche recalled his experiences as a young SAR Tech and the extreme challenges that he experienced during the rescue effort including the weather conditions where the wind chill factor was below -60 degrees Celsius. He echoed Lt.-Col. Poitras' sentiments regarding the teamwork that was

Canadian MFRCs seeking inclusion in defence policy

By Ross Lees

Mmilitary Family Resource Centres (MFRCs) are coming of age and they feel it's time governments started to take notice.

Thirty-two MFRCs across Canada have signed on to a brief entitled "Without family, there is no future," which is being submitted to the Department of National Defence (DND) as part of the public consultation on the future of the Canadian Armed Forces (CAF).

This kind of nation-wide consensus has never happened before, according to Trenton MFRC executive director Tamara Kleinschmidt, which really highlights the importance of the aim of this document – to get military families included in government defence policy documents in the future.

"Right now, we're in a situation where each successive government chooses whether or not to support military families," stated Mrs. Kleinschmidt. "Current and recent governments have acknowledged they see the importance of continuing that family support system because it is imperative to meeting our national and international objectives in regards to defence, but that can change at any time."

Four recommendations came from the week-long discussions that went into establishing the document.

The 32 MFRCs recommend that military families be included in the next defence policy as an integral and essential part of the mission of the CAF, the CAF officially recognize MFRCs as being the official service providers for military families, the CAF signal the commitment of Defence toward military families by means of specific actions like the creation of dedicated programs or the injection of additional funds coming from various government ministries and institutions, and that the CAF develop through the implantation of an intergovernmental cell, a strategy related to the support and to issues facing military families and to its adoption and signing by the Prime Minister, federal ministers and the provincial premiers in order that military families may receive support by all levels of government.

Recognition of MFRCs was included in the recommendations because there are many non-profit organizations popping up to service veterans and military families and there is potential for this area to become muddy, according to Mrs. Kleinschmidt.

"You could have a very fractured set of services with funding going all different places, so we want the statement that MFRCs are the service providers for military families," she indicated. "We need to be entrenched at this point because Treasury Board could determine tomorrow that it's no longer necessary to support military families."

Consensus on the issue was quickly arrived at by all 32 MFRCs across Canada, something that has never happened before," Mrs. Kleinschmidt noted. Because service requirements vary so much from base to base and area to area, there is seldom total agreement.

"Agreement on this issue came within a half a day and we went very quickly from 'should we?' to 'how will we,'" Mrs. Kleinschmidt said.

She sees this document as an indication of a strong national voice of all 32 MFRCs and part of their maturing process.

The document also indicates what's going on in other countries and Mrs. Kleinschmidt says Canada is falling back in the race, now trailing Australia and the United Kingdom.

"This document demonstrates how we can get back to where we should be and I'm really thrilled to be a part of it," she said. "It's perfect timing for the level of engagement the government is asking for with regards to veterans programs."

Multiple significant incidents exercise prepares QIAS 2016 team for the real thing

By Ross Lees

A Quinte International Air Show (QIAS) emergency response exercise held early Friday morning at Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton elicited rave reviews from those in charge.

Designed to test the emergency response readiness of the QIAS 2016 team, the exercise was of simulated multiple significant incidents during the air show and this second response readiness exercise was deemed “very successful” by QIAS 2016 co-chair Lieutenant-Colonel (Lt.-Col.) Kevin Tromp, co-chair of the QIAS 2016.

Simulating two crashes – one on the base and one off the base on private property – the exercise was as close to the real thing as could be simulated and gave the team a good test of their capabilities.

The most glowing words of approval came from QIAS 2016 air boss David White of Toronto.

“At the end of these two exercises, I can say with full confidence the team at QIAS is the best prepared and drilled team I have worked with in the air show business,” Mr. White stated. “I firmly believe we have a plan that accounts for any potential incident and the team is prepared to deal with emergencies at any level.”

The first exercise was a table top exercise with all agencies involved. The second involved two crash sites with appropriate civilian and military personnel responding to the realistic scenes. Medical personnel, police, firefighters, environmental response personnel and many others responded to two simulated and simultaneous major incidents, Lt.-Col. Tromp noted.

“There were a few lessons learned that have allowed us to put the finishing touches on our emergency response plan, but overall the exercise showed that 8 Wing and its community partners are fully prepared to handle emergency

424 Squadron helps Coast Guard locate overdue jet skier

A CH-146 Griffon helicopter and CC-130H Hercules from 424 Transport and Rescue (T&R) Squadron conducted a successful search and rescue (SAR) mission in Inner Bay, 10 Nm southwest of Port Dover, ON Sunday.

At approximately 8:30 p.m. local time, the aircraft from 8 Wing/Canadian Forces Base Trenton were tasked by the Joint Rescue Coordination Centre (JRCC) in Trenton to locate an overdue jet skier.

This SAR mission was initiated when JRCC received a call from a concerned citizen after the lone jet skier did not return when expected. During the search, members of the Norfolk Fire Department on land heard shouting coming from the area of Bosgood Marsh in the vicinity of Long Point which helped focus the SAR assets to the correct area.

Canadian Coast Guard (CCG) was the lead agency for this marine incident. They coordinated the assistance of Norfolk OPP, Norfolk Fire Department, and 424 (T&R) Squadron's SAR crews to locate and recover the overdue jet skier, who was safely transported to the Norfolk General Hospital.

All SAR assets then returned to base.

Media day a chance of a lifetime for Quinte radio reporter

By Ross Lees

Nicole Kleinstuber, a local radio personality, got the surprise of her life when she arrived at the Quinte International Air Show (QIAS) 2016 media day on June 16.

When she left home that morning, she expected an exciting day flying in an aircraft and reporting on the QIAS 2016.

That changed abruptly when she walked into the passenger terminal at Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton and found out that the reporter who was supposed to jump was not going to and she was asked if she wanted to.

“I’ve never been one to turn down an awesome opportunity and especially one I’ve wanted to do for as long as I can remember,” she said later.

So she jumped at the chance, pardon the pun, taking all of about three seconds to make the decision.

On the bus ride out to the aircraft, Nicole was reminded that she had not had time to think about the event and she quickly responded, "And that's a good thing."

When it was all over, she readily admitted she was nervous.

"I was nervous before and now I'm definitely wondering why," she said after the jump and she had had some time to collect herself. "There was the adrenalin, the nervousness I think because when I woke up this morning, I did not know I was going to be jumping from a plane."

8 Wing well represented at Wounded Warriors Canada Battlefield Bike Ride

By Ross Lees

8 Wing/Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton was well represented on the Wounded Warriors Canada (WWC) Battlefield Bike Campaign – The Italian Campaign, which just concluded.

Beautiful, peaceful remembrance of those Canadians who fought in Italy.

Our group rode from here, to the top of the peak in the background. This is the Abbey that was destroyed in the battle and later fully restored.

The CO, Maj. Houdes and I at the top of Monte Casino (the 9.5 km uphill ride) straight up. This is the last day of the ride. The final portion after cycling up and down mountains, was the trip down a mountain of similar height, to the cemetery of the commonwealth allies; across the small town to begin the 9.5 km ascent to the top of Monte Casino, a difficult trip but well worth the effort.

We were happy to be part of a team from all across Canada who helped raise over $400,000 to be put towards programs that will assist military members and families and first responders and their families dealing with mental hardship. This was a great privilege to be on the trip. It helped many to remember the sacrifice of other Canadians to preserve democracy in Italy during WW2. Today there is still a remembrance and thankfulness to Canadians for their effort.

Nicole came out of it quickly and then really started to celebrate the experience, standing up and yelling towards the sky in jubilation.

Moments later, she turned and walked back towards Sgt. Tremblay and gave him a hug and thanked him for the experience.

The view stuck in her mind despite the rapid loops on the way down.

"You could make out the base, you could make out the bay... You know that we live in such a beautiful area, but to see it from so high, it's just phenomenal!"

Would she do it again?

"Definitely! If I ever get the opportunity again, I'll do it," she states emphatically as she walks back towards the hanger and the end of perhaps her most exciting media day ever.

She then got up and went and thanked Sgt. Tremblay for the opportunity.

Quinte West grants 8 Wing Freedom of the City

By Ross Lees

An 85-year-old relationship was celebrated last Friday afternoon when the City of Quinte West opened its arms wide and invited 8 Wing/Canadian Forces Base (CFB) Trenton to have the Freedom of the City.

The ceremony relates back to medieval Europe when armies marauded the land and made cities very unsafe so that they created walls. It was considered an extreme gesture of friendship between a community and a military to allow them inside the city and grant them freedom of the city, according to 8 Wing Commander Colonel (Col.) Colin Keiver.

He brought that history back into play Friday afternoon when he marched a contingent of 150 troops to the Quinte West municipal building and forcibly knocked on the door. Mayor Jim Harrison quickly answered the door and granted Col. Keiver and his troops the freedom they requested after inspecting the troops.

"There is no better gesture from a military perspective," stated Col. Keiver. "It is the highest honour we can grant to a community.

"When it comes to Quinte West, it's a very special relationship that 8 wing and Trenton has," he said. "The base has been here for 85 years and the level of support we get from this community is exceptional."

Col. Keiver said there was a special reason for that special relationship.

"We live and work at the base and we go around the world, but our families stay here, they live in this community, so this community is really important to us!"

The piece of oak attached to the front doors of the Quinte West municipal building as part of the ceremony also holds historical significance, Col. Keiver explained to a gathering at Royal Canadian Legion Branch 110 after the march through the city.

That piece of oak came from trees cut down along Highway 2 last year during construction near the base. Those trees were a gift from Queen Elizabeth II in 1945, delivered in the hold of the Queen Mary as 15-foot saplings to commemorate Canada's key role in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

"That piece off oak is a huge part of history and it thrived in this community just we like we do," noted Col. Keiver.

Mayor Jim Harrison said he had lived in Quinte West near 8 Wing most of his life and the experiences he had with 8 Wing were not only memorable, but also fantastic.

"I want to tell you from the bottom of my heart, we thank you for being here, we thank you for what you do and for some of you, how quickly you pack your bag and head to some other parts of this world. You represent us well and you help keep us safe. We feel safe here and we live in the best country, the best province and the best city because of you," he said.

Mayor Jim Harrison inspects the troops with Capt. Jonathan Campos with Col. Keiver and 8 Wing Chief Warrant Officer Darcy Elder following them.

Col. Colin Keiver leads his troops through the City of Quinte West as a demonstration of Freedom of the City June 17.

have a great lineup, lots of static displays here on the ground and we're very lucky to have a number of United States Air Force aircraft, including the F-22 Raptor, which are going to be on site here and flying in the air show."

She warned in advance that spectators won't be able to approach too closely to the F-22 Raptor, but they will be able to see it on the ground and flying.

"It's an absolutely fabulous aircraft and it's a unique opportunity for us to be able to showcase it here," she added.

Organizers are expecting 50,000 spectators to show up and resume their love affair with this historically popular air show. Lt.-Col. Blue said a lot of effort has gone into re-establishing this air show and it could not have been done without the support and help of a lot of partners.

"We had stunning support from the region - CAE, Boeing, the City of Quinte West, the City of Belleville and the County of Hastings, plus a huge number of other sponsors have been absolutely instrumental in helping us bring next weekend together," she said. She also mention the BMO-sponsored Kid Zone and the stellar help from the local OPP.

This newly revived air show is already pushing other shows for the title of largest air show in Canada this year and it is a trend the organizers hope to see continue into the future.

Logistically, starting up this air show again has been a challenge, but military people like a challenge, Lt.-Col. Blue stated.

She said a lot of planning had to take place for things like parking, bus-ing, concessions, water and electricity, moving people through the gates and the security process, ticketing, fencing and of course port-a-potties.

All of this and still balance their regular workload at the base, Lt.-Col. Blue said of the many military volunteers who also worked diligently over the past eight months to make this show a reality.

"It's been a challenge but we are committed to making sure all of our missions succeed as well as doing the air show. It's a delicate balancing act but everybody is focused on making sure everything can happen," she said.

These final days prior to the Quinte International Air Show 2016 are busy at 8 Wing/CFB Trenton as aircraft from around the world fly in to populate the static displays and skies at Trenton.

Canadian Warplane Heritage Museum pilot Dave Rohrer poses with this Harvard aircraft he flew in for the media day event. This aircraft will be prominently featured throughout the QIAS 2016.

Plan No:
2-3-701

This striking home, with its eye-catching turret and three-sided entry, will be an asset to any neighbourhood. And the inside lay-out is just as thoughtful as the exterior design.

An offset entrance under a covered porch, carousel windows and a pointed roof, together with an abundance of windows, a shake roof and fish scales in the roof peak give the house a touch of class.

Oval glass in the front door and windows on either side bring an abundance of natural light into the soaring foyer. Stairs up to the main floor lead to a great room that really lives up to its name. The entire family area stretches from the front to the rear of the house, providing generous open space for today's informal lifestyles.

A decorative half-wall separates the staircase from the great room, which features a large gas fireplace with optional built-in entertainment units on either side.

In the dining area, an op-portional buffet will provide extra space and a serving area for more formal meals. A sliding glass door opens to a sun deck with steps down to the back garden.

The kitchen will please the cooks in the family, offering plenty of countertop workspace, as well as a walk-in pantry. A window with a view to the garden will make time spent at the kitchen sink seem less taxing. A central island adds to more storage and work-space options and will seat four for quick snacks or casual meals.

The sleeping area is designed to encompass either three or four bedrooms, depending on the plan chosen, the four or the three-bedroom. The three-bedroom layout includes a large master suite at the rear with a boxed-out window, a walk-in closet and an expansive ensuite bathroom with a soaker tub, shower and double vanity. Bedrooms two and three at the front of the house share the main, three-piece bathroom.

In the alternative four-bedroom plan, space for the fourth bedroom is obtained by slightly reducing the size of the master suite, which still retains a generous amount of space, with only a three-piece ensuite bathroom and a slightly smaller walk-in closet.

In this plan, bedrooms three and four occupy the front of the house and bedroom No. 2 is tucked between the master suite and the third bedroom. They share the three-piece central bathroom.

In both layouts, the bedroom adjacent to the stairway enjoys a view through the attractive carousel-shaped windows, as well as to the foyer below.

On the basement level, double doors mark the entrance to the den, which could serve as a home office. A good-sized laundry room includes a handy countertop for folding clothes. The remainder of the basement is unfinished, offering roughed-in plumbing for a three-piece bathroom and a layout for two extra bedrooms, still leaving plenty of space for a recreation area.

The house is 42 feet wide and 40 feet deep with 1,390 square feet of living space and an unfinished basement.

Sept. 11-16 – Operation Heal Our Patriots

Operation Heal Our Patriots(OHOP) is a ministry project of Samaritan's Purse. Samaritan's Purse is a Christian international relief and development organization with projects in more than 100 countries worldwide. OHOP focusses on bringing spiritual refreshment, physical renewal and marriage enrichment to physically and/or emotionally wounded military personnel and their spouses. This year's opportunity for Canadians will take place from September 11 to 16 at the Samaritan Lodge in Port Alsworth, Alaska. Although OHOP has existed since 2012, and hosted more than 500 military couples from the U.S. during the past four years, this is only the second year that a special week has been set aside solely for Canadian military personnel and their spouses. The marital enrichment and spiritual encouragement portion of the week at Samaritan Lodge flows from workshops led by retired military chaplains. The Biblically-based sessions are designed to strengthen married couples' relationship with God and with each other. The relaxation portion of the week at Samaritan Lodge includes a cozy little wheelchair-accessible cabin for each couple, and delicious meals with all 10 couples together. The recreation times include professionally guided kayaking and salmon-fishing excursions, a hike to a scenic waterfall, and a float-plane trip to view grizzly bears. samaritanpurse.ca/ohop

Safety

Falls from ladders are all too common at work and at home

Falls are a leading cause of workplace accidents and falls involving ladders are all too common. Many of these accidents cause serious injury and death. Follow these guidelines for safer use of ladders:

- Before using a ladder, make sure it is in safe repair. Check the rungs, the side rails and the feet are in good condition and secure. Look for any warp or twist in the shape of the ladder.
- When using an aluminium ladder, check for signs of wear and damage. These might include corrosion or loose rivets.
- Extension ladders should be checked for wear, damage to the ropes, pulleys and locks.
- With a stepladder, make sure the spreaders are in good condition and operating correctly. Check to see that the feet on the ladder have slip-resistant material on them and that they are clean and in good condition.
- If you find any defects in a ladder, tag it and remove it from service. This will ensure it is destroyed before someone else can use it. Never paint a wooden ladder. This can hide cracks and other defects. A clear finish or a wood preservative should be used instead of paint.

- Choose the right ladder for the job. Ensure the length is sufficient and it is strong enough to support you and any tools or materials. Never use a ladder made of metal or with metal reinforcement for any electrical work. This means you shouldn't even use an aluminium stepladder — not even for changing a light bulb!
- To set up a straight ladder safely, use the four to one rule. For every four feet in height, the base of the ladder should be one foot away from the wall.
- Place the base of the ladder on a solid, even and stable surface.
- Have someone hold the base of the ladder, or tie or block it. Also have someone hold onto the ladder while you are tying it off at the top.
- Do not climb onto the top few rungs of any ladder.
- You need to use both hands to climb safely, so carry your tools on a belt. Another alternative is to hoist tools and materials up after you climb.
- Wear non-slip footwear to climb a ladder.
- Do not reach too far away from a ladder. One way to make sure you maintain the right center of gravity is to keep your belt buckle be-

- tween the two stiles of the ladder at all times.
- Moving a ladder is a job for at least two people to ensure the ladder does not fall or strike anyone or anything.
- When moving or setting up a ladder, take extreme care to steer clear of any overhead electrical installations such as wires or power lines.

Falls cause many serious injuries and deaths, and ladders are involved in many of these accidents. Remember to follow these ladder safety tips off the job, too.

rescue crews, supporting the SAR response, and preparing for and receiving the dead and wounded. It's their first trip to the crash site since the disaster.

Monty, who still lives with the physical effects of the crash, lost all his fingers and half his toes to frostbite, then endured 12 gruelling surgeries to graft some toes to his hand to restore some dexterity.

"I can put my foot in my mouth faster than anyone!" he quips with a chuckle. "I don't like to use the word closure because it's been 25 years ... It's hard, it's difficult, but I can say this sort of closes it for me."

Led by RCAF Commander Lieutenant-General Michael Hood and RCAF Chief Warrant Officer Gerry Poitras, the contingent also included 8 Wing, CFS Alert, CFS Leitrim and 435 Squadron personnel, and members of the Search and Rescue leadership.

"It's a very personal thing for me, and I felt strongly about wanting to go there," said Lt.-Gen. Hood, who knew and worked with some of the members who died. "We're going to honour the memory of some fantastic Canadians."

The memorial cairn, designed by a team of staff at 1 Canadian Air Division and the Engineering Section of Real Property Operation Detachment Trenton, was flown to CFS Alert, then slung via CH-147 Chinook helicopter to the crash site in order to dedicate the memorial at the sacred site. The 1,133-kilogram cairn, shaped like the tail of the Hercules where survivors huddled after the crash, will then be flown back to 8 Wing Trenton where it will be unveiled in the presence of families of those who died, survivors and rescuers at a ceremony on or about Oct. 30, 2016 - the anniversary of the crash. The RCAF is making contact with families and survivors now as planning for this event builds momentum.

MWO Cobden admits being at the site and part of the ceremony made him emotional for the first time.

"We did lose some lives here," he said, his voice wavering. "I'm just happy I got the opportunity to be invited back to see it in person because it was dark then."

RCAF Commander Lt.-Gen. Michael Hood and RCAF CWO Gerry Poitras unveil the memorial cairn commemorating the 25th anniversary of the crash of Boxtop 22.
