National Air Force Museum of Canada welcomes Lancaster home

A piece of Second World War history has arrived at the National Air Force Museum of Canada (NAFMC).

Museum representatives excitedly rushed to get a glimpse of the Avro Lancaster looking to call Quinte West its home when it was delivered just shortly after 9 a.m. on Oct. 4. The iconic metal frame of the fuselage could be seen strapped securely to one tractor-trailer, while the engines and propellers arrived on another.

"There's a lot of excitement now that most of the pieces of the aircraft are here," said Stu Prescott, the Lancaster restoration project manager. "We got some more pieces coming a little bit later this morning and then that should be just about all of it."

Prescott described seeing Lancaster KB882 in person as "amazing" and an "honour" to get to work on the former war machine.

He went on to explain that the aircraft had flown more than 11 combat missions during the Second World War, flew with the Royal Canadian Air Force (RCAF) for Arctic patrols and even spent some time helping monitor the Soviets during the height of the Cold War.

"Its arrival is just great because it's Second World War, as well as Cold War history, wrapped up into one air-frame," he said, adding that KB882 had flown its last mission in 1964. "It is the last of three that were modified to this specific configuration." The changes were mostly internal with different electronic and radar systems than the regular models, said Prescott, adding that the nose of the aircraft had also been slightly extended in order to fit more cameras for surveillance.

Submitted content

Over the Thanksgiving holidays, civilian contractors and military members gathered together to partake in the Commanding Officer's cribbage tournament. This opportunity gave chances for personnel to mix and mingle with others, while encouraging a little dose of competition. The tournament was good for the morale of Canadian Forces Station Alert, bringing Station personnel closer together on a family holiday.

75 years “On Wings of Fire”

426 Squadron’s 75th Anniversary is happening this October

Photos submitted

By Capt. Glen Perry, 426 Sqn 75th Anniversary Chairman

The 15th of October 2017 marks 75 years since 426 Squadron was formed in the dark days of WWII.

Wing Commander Sedley Blanchard, the first CO of a newly formed 426 Squadron, would choose an indigenous mythological creature to symbolize the new squadron. This creature, a Thunderbird, is a supernatural entity of great power and strength that is thought to bring death upon those enemies who witnessed its presence.

Thus, it was a fitting emblem for a squadron formed at time when the western Allies only principle form of fighting Nazi-Germany was via bombing raids that caused great suffering.

For their part, the Thunderbirds would pay a heavy toll for their mission success with many lost lives.

From its wartime birth to its modern day training mission, the spirit of Wing Commander Blanchard and the symbolism of the Thunderbird lives on.

Formed at RAF Dishforth, England, the Squadron’s mission would evolve over time but would maintain the professionalism and resilience of their wartime predecessors. Wing Commander Blanchard, would invest a spirit of leadership, dedication, and meticulous planning.

These superlative qualities of the Thunderbirds would be displayed on numerous occasions, including the distinction of dispatching more aircraft and suffering more casualties than other bomber units during WWII and the extraordinary efforts of Operation Hawk during the Korean War.

As its transport mission continued during the Cold War after Korea, 426 Sqn would maintain its standard of excellence by achieving numerous resupply missions to the Arctic and keeping overseas peacekeeping units well provisioned.

Today the Squadron is now a high-tech training squadron providing tomorrow’s aircrew and technicians with cutting edge skills and knowledge, still displaying the same passion and dedication of previous generations of air personnel.

To help tie together the three different missions of war, transport and training, the 75th Anniversary will begin in earnest with a return trip to England combining a training mission with memorial services in RAF Linton.

8 Wing Trenton centred events will begin with a Cairn Rededication on October 20th at the National Air Force Museum of Canada.

This year’s solemn cairn rededication will include the unveiling of an RCAF crest made of recovered aluminum from a downed 426 Sqn Halifax Bomber from WWII.

The 75th Anniversary Meet and Greet will strike a lighter tone celebrating the history with a return of Thunderbird veterans.

The Meet and Greet will be held at the Earl of Bessborough immediately after the conclusion of National Sports Day events and feature the sale of 75th Anniversary Patches and Coins.

Saturday 21st October will feature a special Anniversary Dinner.

The Capstone event will be held on Sunday October 22nd with the 426 Sqn Family Day, 75th Anniversary Edition.

This will include Herc rides for Vets, a great BBQ, and a special obstacle course plus an obligatory 75th Anniversary Birthday cake.

All 8 Wing Trenton personnel are invited to help present and former Thunderbirds mark this momentous anniversary!

Drying machine fire safety tips

There are about 12,700 clothes dryer fires in residential buildings annually in the United States (Source: U.S. Fire Administration). These preventable fires caused 15 deaths, 300 injuries and about $88 million US in property damage. There are no comparable statistics available for Canada.

Doing laundry is most likely part of your everyday routine. But did you know how important taking care of your clothes dryer is to the safety of your home? With a few simple safety tips you can help prevent a clothes dryer fire.

"In Canada, we excessively use our dryers". If you're anything like so many Canadian families, we're doing two to three loads of laundry every day, so you need to make sure to clean the dryer trap every time with every usage. Failure to clean out lint traps is the main cause of dryer fires. A blocked vent or exhaust pipe blocks hot air from release, turning the highly combustible lint into a fire hazard. Dryer fires are a common occurrence. Here are a few tips to help prevent a disaster.

FACT: The leading cause of home clothes dryer fires is failure to clean them!

TIPS:

- Have your dryer installed and serviced by a professional;
- Do not use the dryer without a lint filter
- Dryers should be properly grounded.
- Check the outdoor vent flap to make sure it is not covered by snow.
- Keep the area around your dryer clear of things that can burn (boxes, cleaning supplies and clothing, etc).
- Clothes that have come in contact with flammable substances, like gasoline, paint thinner, or similar solvents should be laid outside to dry, then can be washed and dried as usual.
- Make sure you clean the lint filter before or after each load of laundry.
- Remove lint that has collected around the drum;
- Rigid or flexible metal venting material should be used to sustain proper air flow and drying time;
- Make sure the air exhaust vent pipe is not restricted and the outdoor vent and the flap will open when the dryer is operating;
- Once a year (or more often), if you notice that it is taking longer than normal for your clothes to dry, clean the lint out of the vent pipe or have a dryer lint removal service do it for you;
- DO NOT use sheet metal screws or other fasteners which extend into the duct that could catch lint and reduce the efficiency of the exhaust system;
- Keep dryers in good working order. Gas dryers should be inspected by a professional to make sure that the gas line and connection are intact and free of leaks;
- Make sure the right plug and outlet are used and that the machine is connected properly. Follow the manufacturer's operating instructions and don't overload your dryer; and
- Turn the dryer off if you are planning to leave your home or when you go to bed.

These few but simple tips will help prevent a dryer fire and help to keep you and your family safe.

8 Wing gearing up for national sports day

By Makala Chapman

The Canadian Armed Forces' (CAF) national sports day is promising a little something for everyone says 8 Wing Chief of Staff, Lieutenant-Colonel (Lt.-Col.) David Alexander.

Military members at 8 Wing Trenton will get the chance to try their hand at more than 18 different sporting activities from golf to martial arts on Oct. 20.

Running from 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., the various sporting events will take place all across the base and can be accessed by registering through the designated person in charge of the activity.

All available 8 Wing members, under the direction of their commanding officers, will take part in the opening ceremonies on the Parade Square, which will launch the beginning of sports day.

"It will be a lot of fun," said Lt.-Col. Alexander. "It's a great opportunity for people on the wing to try something they may have not ever done."

Speaking from his own experience, he said that maintaining a level of fitness was important and a good outlet for the stresses that come along with everyday life.

"We demand a lot from our people, but we do also try to provide them with the tools to cope with those demands," he said. "It's important to have a balanced lifestyle."

He went on to explain that while some people may not see the benefit of physical exercise when they are younger, the benefits become more evident the older a person gets.

As for what he plans to take part in on Oct. 20, Lt.-Col. Alexander said he could most likely be found at the pool swimming or on the squash courts.

A pizza lunch will also be offered to athletes at the Astra Lounge/Earl of Bessborough Social House from 1 - 2 p.m.

Registration for the various sporting events can be done through unit representatives

Confined spaces extraction training all about safety

Corporal (Cpl.) Nicholas MacFarlane crawls around the confined space of a fuel cell used for training on September 26, 2017.

Corporal (Cpl.) Nicholas MacFarlane climbs into the fuel cell used for training on September 26, 2017.

The military fire department and medical services also got on board with the mock training and check over a dummy that was extracted from the fuel cell.

By Makala Chapman

When an aircraft at 8 Wing Trenton has an issue with one of its fuel cells, sometimes the only way to fix it is to get inside of it. But climbing into the belly of a tank that normally holds thousands of pounds of fuel can be a dangerous and hard job, says training coordinator Corporal (Cpl.) Nicholas MacFarlane with 8 Air Maintenance Squadron (8 AMS). In order to reduce the chance of injury, any repair technicians entering the confined space must go through routine emergency extraction training in case something goes wrong and a rescue needs to be conducted. Carefully squeezing himself through the opening of a fuel cell used for practice purposes at the Air Mobility Training Centre (AMTC), Cpl. MacFarlane noted that individuals with a smaller frame tend to find it easier to move around inside the tanks. Once inside the fuel cell, Cpl. MacFarlane navigated his way around by crawling on his stomach as he pushed wires out of the way and maneuvered around several metal barriers. Halfway into the tank, he then came face-to-face with a life-size dummy who he explained weighed as much as 180 lbs. and was often used by the students practicing emergency rescues. "Everything has to be set up properly, working and tested," said Cpl. MacFarlane, noting that someone's first time inside the fuel cell could be nerve-racking. "If everything is followed, it's pretty safe." Overlooking the training course was Captain (Capt.) Steve Methot, 8 AMS' aircraft repair officer. Having been inside the fuel tank himself, he noted that training for small areas that could potentially pose a safety risk was important. "The fuel cell is not meant for human occupancy which makes it a confined space," he said. "It's very claustrophobic inside and it can be pitch dark." He noted that technicians were trained to be aware of issues that could arise while in the tank, such as contaminated air and problems with the safety equipment. "The training is a standardized thing that we verify yearly to make sure the training we provide actually works in the case of an emergency," he said. "It also gives us the confidence that we can do our job safely in the most efficient way." A simulated emergency extraction exercise was then conducted and the trainees were sent into the tank to retrieve the dummy. Once out of the fuel cell, the Base's fire department and medical services were called to the scene to take part in the exercise to go over their role in a rescue. "Everybody has set tasks they must do," said Capt. Methot. "The safety of the technicians is always number one."

Flu season just around the corner

By Ashley Withers, BScN RN, Community Health Nurse

The flu is a contagious respiratory illness caused by influenza viruses that infect the nose, throat, and lungs. Influenza can cause mild to severe illness with a sudden onset of high fever, cough, muscles aches, headache and chills that can sometimes result in hospitalization or death. These symptoms may last from 7-10 days. Severe disease is usually more common in the elderly, the young or people with underlying medical conditions. Influenza virus is easily transmitted from person-person through the air by coughing and sneezing, or by the hands contaminated with respiratory secretions. Influenza vaccine is safe and the best way to combat the flu. It is uncommon to have side effects from the vaccine. At the site of the injection you may experience redness or soreness for approximately 24-48 hours. Few people may experience mild fever, fatigue, and body aches for 1-2 days. The vaccine will NOT give you the flu. It is made from tiny portions of the flu virus and is not alive, therefore not capable of causing influenza. Each year 8 Wing Trenton commences a flu campaign to protect its valuable military members against the influenza virus to promote a healthy environment and keep our forces strong. The CF Surgeon General strongly recommends that all members receive this vaccine well in Garrison or abroad. When protecting yourself against the flu we are also protecting our comrades, loved ones and others who may not have the opportunity to protect themselves. Please remember to practice etiquette and wash or rub your hands frequently. Walk-in flu clinics will commence October 23, 2017 and continue every Monday 0800-1140 and Wednesday 1300-1500 until Christmas leave. All military members are welcome to participate. The immunization clinic is also offering traveling flu clinics which will visit different locations on base for member convenience. Please visit the splash page for details on traveling flu clinics. Civilian flu clinics will be held by the Hastings Prince Edward Public Health unit at various locations. Please visit: www.hpepublichealth.ca or call 1-800-267-2803 ex 313 for influenza details. Flu shots are also available through participating pharmacies for 5 years of age and older, and your health care provider.

8 Wing Trenton golf team finishes strong at regionals

By MCpl Myles Sills, team captain

I would like to start off by saying that the CFB Trenton Golf Team consisting of MWO Scott Lunn, MWO William Rickard, MWO Susana Keyes, Sgt Penelope Stuart, MCpl Ryan Forster, MCpl Myles Sills and Cpl Robert Shields had an amazing time at CFB Petawawa during the 2017 Golf Regionals.

The experience was awesome; we were welcomed right away when we arrived there on Oct. 19, ready for our practice round. The course was in great shape, the weather was the best of the summer and we were all ready for a great week of golf. Everybody played great golf throughout the week, we had a great team and finished third overall. CFB Petawawa's Golf Course hospitality was great supplying us with snacks and refreshments every day throughout the heat wave.

Photo submitted

There were lots of great shots, long drives and excellent putts. To finish off it was a great week of golf and can't wait till next year, I want to give a special thanks to Ryan Meeks for putting everything together and Brandon McLean General Manager of Bay of Quinte Golf Course for providing us with Golf Balls.

Behind the scenes with 8 Wing Trenton's explosives experts

By Makala Chapman

It's not every day that people hear stories of residents accidentally digging up old Second World War relics like mortars and old grenades. But when cases like that happen, that's when the military gets involved, says 8 Wing Trenton's Sergeant (Sgt.) Steve Kozlik with 8 Explosive Disposal Flight (EDF). Any cases involving military-grade explosives or weaponry in the region, either from the past or present, are primarily the responsibility of 8 EDF.

Once called to the scene, the team of explosive disposal technicians are tasked with neutralizing and destroying the potential threat.

As an example, Sgt. Kozlik recalled when the team had recently been sent out to a location near Odessa, Ont., to deal with what was initially believed to have been a mortar.

"It ended up being an aircraft practice bomb," said Sgt. Kozlik, noting that it had been filled with concrete, not any explosive materials.

In another incident, he recalled the time when the Durham Regional Police called the base to deal with four grenades they had seized in early July.

"We ended up evacuating everyone from the beach area and disposed of them under controlled conditions," said Sgt. Kozlik.

8 EDF is responsible for answering calls all the way from Oshawa to just short of North Bay and to the east near Ottawa.

As for what the team deals most within the Quinte region, Master Corporal (MCpl.) D.J. Cascone, also with 8 EDF, said it's for reports of LUU and marker location marine flares being found.

"The (marker location marine flares) are used for marking your position on the water if a search for stranded boaters or something like that," he said, adding that the LUU flares are often used during training exercises.

He further went on to explain that if any military items are found, such as a flare, it should be reported to the police or the military for collection and proper disposal.

Chiming in on the conversation, Captain (Capt.) Steve Methot noted that often times people keep military items they find as souvenirs, unaware of the real dangers they pose.

"The explosive over time deteriorates and changes," he said. "That's when it gets difficult to predict its behaviour. It's unsafe."

Just recently the team had to deal with a case of a contractor taking home a military artifact he had found while on the job in Kingston. "A contractor working on a pool happened to pull up a practice round from a Howitzer that was dated between 1920 to 1945," he said. "He was hoping to keep it but after talking to (family) he decided contact the Kingston Police, who then got a hold of us."

Luckily for the contractor, Sgt. Kozlik noted that the practice round had also just been filled with concrete and wasn't at risk of exploding.

But he added that keeping up to date with military weapons from both the past and present was crucial to the job since there is always the possibility of unearthing explosives yet to be found.

"We still have to stay up to date on everything from World War I, World War II and beyond," he said, adding that they've uncovered items like cannonballs, which easily predate the 1900s. "It can be a dangerous job, but we make it as safe as possible."

To help make the job a little safer, 8 EDF utilizes items like remotely operated vehicles (ROV) which have the ability to act as the eyes, ears and hands of the technicians during dangerous situations.

One of the most useful features of the remotely operated robots includes its claw and camera, said MCpl. Cascone.

"It allows us to be upwards of a kilometre away from whatever it is we're trying to look at," he said. "The last thing we want to do is be standing over top of something and it goes off."

He went on to explain that the robot claw was able to do everything from opening cars, ripping stuff apart to being able to drag a human out of a danger zone in the case of an emergency.

Another useful tool used by the 8 EDF team is the EOD9 suit that is used during calls.

Fixed with a two-way radio, a climate controlled helmet and a light, the suit is also a critical component of the job.

But Capt. Methot reiterated that despite having top of the line equipment to help aid the team with their job, it still had its dangers.

"It's very important what we do here," said Capt. Methot. "Our guys are trained, they know what to do, they have the equipment, and they should be the people that should be handling (explosives) when people come across them."

When 8 EDF isn't busy responding to calls, they spend the majority of their time training and furthering their skills.

KB882, which previously spent the last 53-years perched at the entrance of the Edmundston Airport in New Brunswick, recently was donated to NAFMC by the city of Edmundston on Sept. 20. "Having an aircraft like this to maintain and display costs a lot of time, money and expertise," said Prescott, who noted that Edmundston willingly passed on the torch to NAFMC, "but we're thrilled with them for taking care of it and preserving it so we could have this opportunity to restore it and put it back on display." After a trip to Edmundston for the official hand-over ceremony, museum representatives and crews from 8 Wing Trenton's Aerospace Telecommunications and Engineering Support Squadron (ATESS) immediately began disassembling the historic relic for its long journey back to Quinte West.

While a big undertaking, Prescott said the job would be doable and pointed to other successful restoration projects the museum has completed, such as the revitalization of the Handley-Page Halifax NA337 aircraft. "If they can rebuild that Halifax, they can return this Lancaster to its glory days," said Prescott. He added that having the Lancaster and the Halifax housed at the same museum was even more special since the two aircrafts have history together. "Looking at their log books, we can confirm that KB882 and NA337 were both flying missions over northern Germany on the same night in April in 1945," he said. "It's kind of a unique connection." Revelling in KB882's sheer size as it arrived on Wednesday was Deryck Brown, one of the original members of the restoration crew that worked on the museum's Halifax back in 1995.

The long-time museum volunteer noted that it had taken around a decade to restore the Halifax and that he was looking forward to seeing the museum start working on the Lancaster. "The Halifax and the Lancaster are the two aircrafts that helped win the war," he said. When asked if he planned on helping restore the Lancaster to its former glory, he chuckled and said while it would have been nice, he would be sitting this one out. "I'm 86 years old now and in 10 more years I don't think I'd be having fun," he said, adding that he had some other projects that were occupying his time at the museum. "I'd love to see the end project though." Brown, a former engineer mechanic who served with the Royal Air Force said he originally moved to Canada in 1956 to look for work in the aviation field.

But, he jokingly added that despite his wishes to work on the Avro Arrow aircraft, he was never able to since the Canadian government scrapped the controversial project in 1959 for reasons still unknown to this day. Not long after, he said that's when he began helping restore aircrafts for NAFMC. Museum officials said they are looking at a seven-year restoration period and will hope to have the Lancaster completed in time for the 100th anniversary of the Royal Canadian Air Force — which is April 1, 2024. Restoration plans for the Lancaster include stripping the old paint off the frame, rebuilding corroded panels and general maintenance so that it will be display ready by the finish date. Those interested in helping with the restoration project are asked to contact the museum.

Avro Lancaster K8BB2 was one of three aircrafts modified for reconnaissance missions during World War II and the Cold War. The front end of the aircraft's fuselage arrived at the National Air Force Museum of Canada on Oct. 4, 2017.

Avro Lancaster K8BB2 was delivered to the National Air Force Museum of Canada in sections on Oct. 4, 2017 after having been dismantled and transported from Edmundston, N.B.

Padre's Corner

A small prayer may be enough

By Padre (Maj.) Richard Bastien, Wing Chaplain at 8 Wing Trenton

Lately, I have been inspired by the bestselling author Max Lucado. One of his latest books is Before Amen, which talks about the short prayers in the Bible. One of them is found in the Gospel of St. John, chapter 2 – and took place in the city of Cana in Galilee. Do you remember the famous story of the wedding at Cana? Here is what I found very interesting: We have a very normal situation – there’s a wedding, the following party goes well, everybody is happy, the food is good, and the bride is beautiful. Then all of a sudden something went wrong, the wine was gone! Have you ever run out of something? Perhaps lately, you’ve even found yourself a little short on hope? How about when you’ve run out of gas in the car? As Lucado says, are you complaining about the gauge? No, you get the car to a gas pump ASAP. You go back to the source. In the story of the wedding that ran out of wine, one of the shortest requests in the Bible was as simple as Mary saying “They have no more wine.” Sometimes our prayers or requests can be short just like that. It can be as simple as, “God I can’t take this anymore!” or “Lord, I need help!” No complaint, no question, just this, a few words from the bottom of our heart. It should be noted that at the end of the wedding story, God blessed everyone beyond what they could have expected. So if you feel you are running out of something, feel free to just bring your need to your God and who knows, just a small prayer may be sufficient!
